ASSOCIATION OF BRITISH
SCIENCE WRITERS

About us

The Association of British Science Writers, established in 1947, exists to champion independence and excellence in the reporting of science, medicine, engineering and technology.

We support journalists and writers at all career stages through an annual calendar of conferences, summer schools, networking events, awards, fellowships, mentoring and professional resources.

Vision

We champion independence and excellence in the reporting of science, medicine, engineering and technology.

Mission

We want to help build a society that encourages and values open, independent, objective and fair assessment of science and its role in society, and rewards diversity, originality and flair in reporting.

The Oscars of science journalism

The ABSW awards are the Oscars of science journalism, they are the oldest established awards for science writing and have now been running for over 50 years. The awards reward bravery, flair and independence in science journalism setting the standards of excellence across fifteen categories.

Annual Awards Ceremony

The awards are presented at the annual awards ceremony, considered to be the highlight of the UK science journalism calendar, where the UK's leading science journalists meet to celebrate their achievements over the past year. Sponsors are invited to the ceremony and can present their supported award and meet science journalists in a relaxed but celebratory environment, ideal for networking. Winners of awards receive a cash prize and certificate.

Lifetime Achievement Award

The ABSW's premier award is its award for lifetime achievement, awarded to those showing outstanding leadership and services to science journalism, past winners include Sir David Attenborough and Sir Philip Campbell.

In 2022 the award was made to broadcaster and presenter Judith Hann (pictured below accepting her award).

Working in partnership

We forge impactful and sustainable partnerships with companies whose values align with our own. Our aim is to expand the reach and impact of our work; in return, we offer our partners powerful opportunities for maximizing return on investment through:

First benefit

Increased brand visibility.

Second benefit

Relationship-building with future key decision-makers, and optimising the talent base of science writing in the UK.

Third benefit

Networking with ABSW members and delegates.
