We all get better when you do

An introductory message from the Everyone in Health Committee

Hello and welcome to Everyone in Health!

We are a diverse, professional and multidisciplinary organisation with the end-goal of improving the outcomes of care delivered to all patients in the United Kingdom (UK) through our significant range of exciting and insightful activities and engagements.

We hope to have a significant impact, or at least provide inspiration, for the professional development of management, leadership and safety and quality enhancement within individuals providing care in the UK.

We do not work in silos; everyone is welcome, not only clinicians, but also service users and other health and social care staff – we do not discriminate!

This booklet will provide you (we hope!) with further information on the 'who', 'what', 'where', 'why', 'when' and 'how' of our organisation.

Remember, we all get better when you do!

We hope to see you, online or in person, soon.

The Everyone in Health Committee.

Our Vision, Mission and Philosophy

Vision

Our vision is to provide a focus for discussion in order to improve care for patients within, and outside of, the NHS, by providing inspiration for, and maintaining, a culture of leadership and improvement.

Mission

Our mission is to develop a range of high-quality online resources, organise online and face-to-face events and provide networking opportunities for all.

We interact with all interested stakeholders from across the system, providing valuable insights for the development of professionals working within UK health and social care.

Philosophy

As per our organisation's name, we exist to encompass the range of individuals utilising and working in health and social care in the UK – regardless of their role or qualification.

When we say 'everyone' we really do mean it!

Secondly, we are not a managerial gimmick, a diktat from up on high.

We believe that grass-roots change works much better than that which is dictated on a top-down basis.

EiH was founded by a junior doctor, armed with a simple passion to improve patient care (and thus outcomes) and an idea; that is all we needed to become established.

The ongoing passion of our stakeholders will be all we need to provide momentum for the realisation of our vision.

Finally, we are strictly a not-for-profit organisation.

We aim only to cover our costs.

We are all volunteers –the chair, the committee, the content creators – indeed, we are a Community Interest Company (CIC, registered at Companies House), and are obliged to provide a social benefit without profit through our operations.

We exist to achieve our vision, and that alone is enough for all of us who work with EiH.

About Everyone in Health

What?

Everyone in Health is a not-for-profit organisation (in the form of a Community Interest Company, CIC) aimed at developing and delivering high quality resources, tools, and events to develop management, leadership and other associated skills of everyone involved in health and social care, in order to improve the quality and safety of care delivered in the UK.

Not only do we provide numerous exceptional online development materials, updated on a regular basis, but we also host a range of networking opportunities, and a mixture of online and face-to-face events aimed at allowing you to connect with various stakeholders for your own personal and professional development.

We want to empower all staff and service users to improve, and develop, services for the benefit of the users of those services.

Where?

EiH was founded in East Yorkshire.

As time has passed, we have developed ever-more connections across the UK. We have links to Northern Ireland, Leeds and beyond, and are growing our network of similar organisations all the time.

We are always looking to expand our activities – get in touch if you would like to be involved in our ever-expanding operations!

How?

There are a range of activities and resources we provide in order to achieve our vision; provision of unique opportunities for our members, access to online resources, the hosting of online and face-to-face events and networking opportunities, as well as opportunities to get involved with EiH and other organisations and projects outside of the core of EiH.

When?

Developed originally as a vague idea in September 2019, EiH has come a long way since.

Our enthusiastic committee are developing further innovative ideas, concepts and activities for our website, as well as planning for future events and networking opportunities over the coming months and years.

We provide frequent blog updates on all of these exciting developments on our website, send out email updates and produce a newsletter to keep all interested stakeholders up to date with our future plans, and past activities.

We hold online events, provide online networking opportunities and produce personal development resources on an ongoing basis throughout the year.

In addition, we hold, subject to availability of venues and ongoing changes to legislation, face-to-face events in a variety of locations.

Why?

In the context of our modern healthcare delivery, individual and group traits of excellence in leadership and management are crucial in the delivery of exceptional patient care.

Systemic thinking around the context in which healthcare is delivered, as well as the management and leadership of individual organisations and people, are vital skills for all those involved in the delivery of health and social care in the UK.

We believe that such qualities are essential for all who hold a role in the delivery of health and social care services, and not just for those who hold formal leadership and managerial positions. This includes front-line clinicians, as well as those who are performing other activities within the context of the UK health and social care, such as domestic staff and administrators. 'Co-production', involving service users in service development, is also key in enhancing care and improving the outcomes of that care.

EiH aims to enhance these skills in health and social care staff in a fun, friendly, interactive and exciting format, within a safe environment.

Who?

EiH is an organisation founded, chaired and managed by an Emergency Medicine Doctor in Yorkshire. They have accumulated a vast range of management and leadership experience in the NHS and beyond, and want to inspire a culture of improvement, safety and enhanced inter- and intra-professional relationships within healthcare in the UK to provide exceptional health and social care provision and outcomes. They have also run a similar organisation whilst at university in the form of a student healthcare management and leadership society in Northern Ireland.

The founder is joined by an invaluable and diverse multidisciplinary committee.

We are a membership organisation; we do charge a small fee for membership to help us meet our costs (see the website for the up-to-date membership fee). We aim to keep our fees as low as possible through ongoing transparent engagement with various private and public sector organisations.

Members of EiH receive a range of benefits including priority event access, the elimination of charges for some chargeable events, significant discounts on chargeable keynote events, access to exclusive networking opportunities and full access to our archive, and our freshly produced online resources.

Our funding comes from minimal membership subscriptions, contributions from philanthropic individuals who share our values, as well as collaborations with private sector partners who wish to build their profile in the community through engagement with us, as part of their demonstration of their commitment to corporate social responsibility.

We also have connections to charitable and other not-for-profit organisations, who we support, free of charge, as part of our work through mutual promotion and the hosting of micro-sites on our own website to increase the online visibility of those organisational in order to promote their charitable work.

We work across people, organisations and sectors throughout the healthcare system in order to allow for the personal development of all staff who are involved in healthcare delivery in the UK. We know that when the everyone within the system of delivery of health and social care work well together, the quality of care, and outcomes of that care delivered to patients are significantly enhanced.

How we do, what we do?

There are a range of activities and resources we provide in order to achieve our vision.

We aim to provide the best range of engagement facilities we can provide as much inspiration as we can to all stakeholders, who may require different resources at different times, on a huge variety of topics within the system of the delivery of health and social care in the UK.

The website: our unique online offering

We have a team of exceptional and dedicated online content creators who produce a range of fantastic and engaging resources such as interviews, podcasts, workbooks and more!

The majority of the resources are for members only, but we provide some resources in the public domain for assessment by potential members; we are so confident about the quality of our resources that we are willing to put them out there for all to see!

Members get the most benefit from our resources; they get access to every single one of our growing collection, both old and new.

Members will learn new techniques, gain insights and be provided with tools and opportunities through these resources in order to improve the care provided to the service users they come into contact with (and potentially beyond those direct contacts).

Visit www.everyoneinhealth.com to find out more.

Our events: exciting, inspiring, exhilarating

We have a track record, working with others, of attracting the best speakers within the sector; EiH will be no exception!

With unique insights from high quality health and social care speakers we will pack a punch when it comes to our events; both online and face-to-face.

We aim to hold events throughout the year, providing insights, tools, personal development and networking opportunities for all in order to improve the skills of everyone.

Networking: be involved, get engaged, exceed your limits.

Networking is vitally important in the modern world, particularly so in health and social care.

Interacting with colleagues on an even footing provides a world of opportunities to improve patient care through research, quality improvement projects and other such outcome improvement engagements within the sector.

Both online, and in person, we provide opportunities for our members to meet with interesting people (as well as other members) to share knowledge and opportunities.

We hope that our networking ventures will lead to significant innovation within the UK health and social care sector.

We look forward to seeing you there!

How can I get involved?

There are many ways you can get involved with EiH and deliver better care for service users.

You can become a member on our website, enabling you to access all of our high-quality resources.

If you want to get further involved in EiH, you can apply to join our committee, become a collaborative partner (either private, public or third sector) or join our group of excellent content creators. You can also become a speaker at one of our events, produce an ad-hoc resource for our website, or provide financial and non-financial support in order to help us deliver our vision.

We are working towards the development of a franchise model for the hosting of online and face-to-face events in order to spread our work across the UK, and increase the chance of us achieving our vision.

If you would like to get involved in setting up a franchised branch of EiH in your local area, please get in touch – we will provide support and a friendly face on an ongoing basis to help you inspire others!

Visit www.everyoneinhealth.com to find out more about our organisation, committee members, upcoming events and networking opportunities, online resources and to volunteer to become an EiH collaborator (public, private or charitable sector) or speaker at an event, sign up to the committee or become a member of EiH.

We look forward to engaging with you soon!

Everyone in Health: we all get better when you do!

About the Founder

Dr Adam Dalby

BSc (Hons), MB BCh BAO, PG Cert
Founder, Chair and Managing Director

Dr Adam Dalby is an Emergency Medicine Doctor working in Yorkshire, and is the Founder of Everyone in Health.

He holds a medical degree from The Queen's University of Belfast and holds further qualifications in management and health economics from Imperial College London Business School and the University of Aberdeen, respectively.

He has a passion for quality improvement, patient safety, leadership and management and founded Everyone in Health with the philosophy of ensuring that management and leadership skills are embedded in all throughout the health service.

He founded the Northern Ireland Healthcare Leadership Forum in Belfast, as a student, and this organisation is still going strong after almost a decade, attracting up to 400 delegates to each event. He hopes that Everyone in Health can replicate the success of this project going forward.

He hopes you are interested enough in Everyone in Health to find out more on the website and engage with the society as it progresses.
