The Travel Medicine Spring School, organized by TropNet in collaboration with the Experimental and Clinical Medicine Department at the University of Florence and the Regional Referral Center for Tropical Diseases, is addressed to young trainees and health care workers that work in the field of travel medicine, or that are willing to. The course is aimed at improving and deepening the knowledge on several aspects of travel medicine, including pre-travel considerations, management of post-travel health issues, extreme and wilderness medicine and One Health approaches to travel medicine. The course will be held in person and based on interactive presentations with field's experts and discussion of clinical cases.

CALL FOR ABSTRACT

Submitted cases of neurologic, gastrointestinal, dermatologic or febrile illness in returned travelers/migrants will be evaluated to be presented and discussed during the course.
