Promoting safe, sustainable innovation in payments

Who we are

The Payments Innovation Forum (PIF) is a UK based, not-for-profit trade association promoting safe, sustainable innovation in payments that balances the needs and interests of the industry, industry regulators and consumers. PIF is for a broad range of companies with different expertise across the payments ecosystem.

Regarded as a focal point for industry advocacy and thought leadership, PIF is unique in that it represents members on an agenda-free basis, free from commercial influence. With over 16 years' industry experience, PIF offers members a safe space to learn, connect and grow.

How we are governed

Our Mission

Our mission is to promote safe, sustainable innovation in payments that balances the interests of industry, regulators and consumers.

What we do

PIF is a membership organisation, a professional body working to promote innovation in payments that balances the needs and interests of the industry, industry regulators and consumers. We educate and inspire policymakers, consumer bodies and the media about innovation in payments, and we support the organisations behind it. We demonstrate the positive difference innovation in payments is making to the lives of many millions of consumers and we help members to meet shifting consumer needs. We push for the best possible outcomes from regulatory change, and we help members to meet the growing expectations of regulators. Much of this work is done through PIF working groups and task forces, PIF community conferences and events, regulatory engagement, participation in wider industry events, and focused campaigns.

PIF Membership is for all companies operating in the payments and fintech space, to whom we offer a wide range of services and benefits. A busy calendar of events includes the Payments Innovation Day - our flagship event, the PIF AGM & Summit, monthly legal and regulatory briefings, and a packed programme of PIF community meetings. A comprehensive library of member resources includes industry trends and analysis, consumer research, practical member guidance, White Papers and a Jobs Board.

Through our mission, vision and values, we are focused on driving market confidence and making sure that our members can continue to grow and thrive.

Why we do what we do

Trust is hard to build, but very easy to lose

The consequences of poor industry practice can be severe. Apart from the regulatory impacts, one incident can have far-reaching implications for the industry as a whole, and could lead to consumers not trusting firms with their money. We help members prepare for change that comes from regulation and we act swiftly to prevent misleading and misinformed opinion from harming the growth of sector, and stifling innovation in payments.

The rapid pace of change in payments

We know how challenging it can be to launch or scale a business in the payments space. Whether that's taking a new product to market, expanding your network, or finding the right partners or investment to help you grow, we help our members to navigate the challenges, identify new opportunities and know the risks. We do this through events and conversations with influential decision-makers from across the payments ecosystem.

Our values

We are professional and trustworthy - we always act with integrity. We do what we say we will do, and we are open with members about our objectives and impact.

We are member-driven - we shape our ideas with our members and make our work accessible. We thrive on candour and rigorous debate, but collectively own our decisions.

We are open - we pride ourselves on being transparent and accountable to members. We welcome new thinking, and we are open to exploring different perspectives.

We are lean but agile - we always expect the unexpected. This means we are always ready to adapt to change and the needs of our members.

We work on an agenda-free basis - we do not have shareholders to pay. PIF Board members leave their commercial interests at the door and focus on what's best for members and the industry as a whole.

We never over-promise - we are ambitious about our goals, but pragmatic in how we achieve them. Sustainable success to us means not spreading ourselves too thin, and having regard for the interests of all members.

We don't defend the indefensible - we always support industry practice that operates in the best interests of consumers.

We believe that regulation is vital to driving innovation in payments - but it doesn't require a heavy hand.

Our Working Groups and taskforces

Our working groups and task forces are the engine room of PIF, where industry challenges are raised, issues debated, ideas conceived and solutions sought. They guide our work and are the mechanism through which members collaborate with each other on substantive issues.

PIF International Discovery Group - the primary forum through which members can deepen their knowledge of operating a payments business in and across different jurisdictions. It facilitates the exchange of knowledge, experience and lessons learned, offering expert insights from our association counterparts in key markets including those across the EU and North America.

PIF Business Task Force - our business task force shares valuable learnings and 'know how' in relation to launching, running and scaling a sustainable business. It offers practical guidance and is a mechanism through which members can seek solutions to issues in common.

PIF Legal and Regulatory Briefings - our monthly briefings keep members up to date on the latest legal and regulatory developments impacting the payments and e-money sector.

Industry insights and thought-leadership

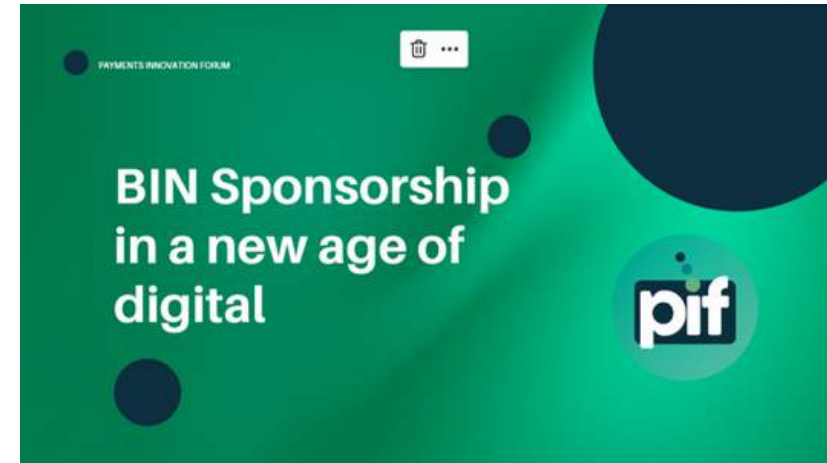

We create thoughtful, cutting-edge insights and opinion from our payments community. Our White Papers are designed to promote understanding of often complex issues, which in turn helps our members to make informed decisions. We commission research and analysis to promote understanding of evolving consumer needs and preferences, and work with our members to highlight their in-depth research and sector analysis.

Practical member guidance and resources

We provide our members with a wealth of resources including briefing notes and practical guidance. Leveraging the experience and expertise of the PIF community, our member-only resources share valuable insights, analysis, and lessons learned. Developed in response to evolving member needs, our issue-driven guidance explores a range of topics, including the fundamentals of taking a new product to market and building business resilience. We also develop evergreen documents that are continually updated in line with industry developments and regulatory change.

Representation and reputation management

Reputation management

Left unchecked, misinformed public opinion and misleading media coverage creates confusion and can be harmful, both to individual firms and the industry as a whole. We bridge knowledge gaps where we find them, through educational campaigns and fact-based input, free from hyperbole and knee-jerk reactions. We support our members in addressing potentially damaging narratives and act swiftly to help them reduce the impact.

Representation

We represent our members' interests at each stage of the legislative process for payment services and e-money. We undertake a range of tasks to help ensure that the products and services our members provide are understood and accommodated by regulators, policymakers, policy influencers and government departments. We act quickly to highlight unintended consequences of regulatory change, and advocate for policy that fosters innovation in payments, whilst protecting the interests of consumers.

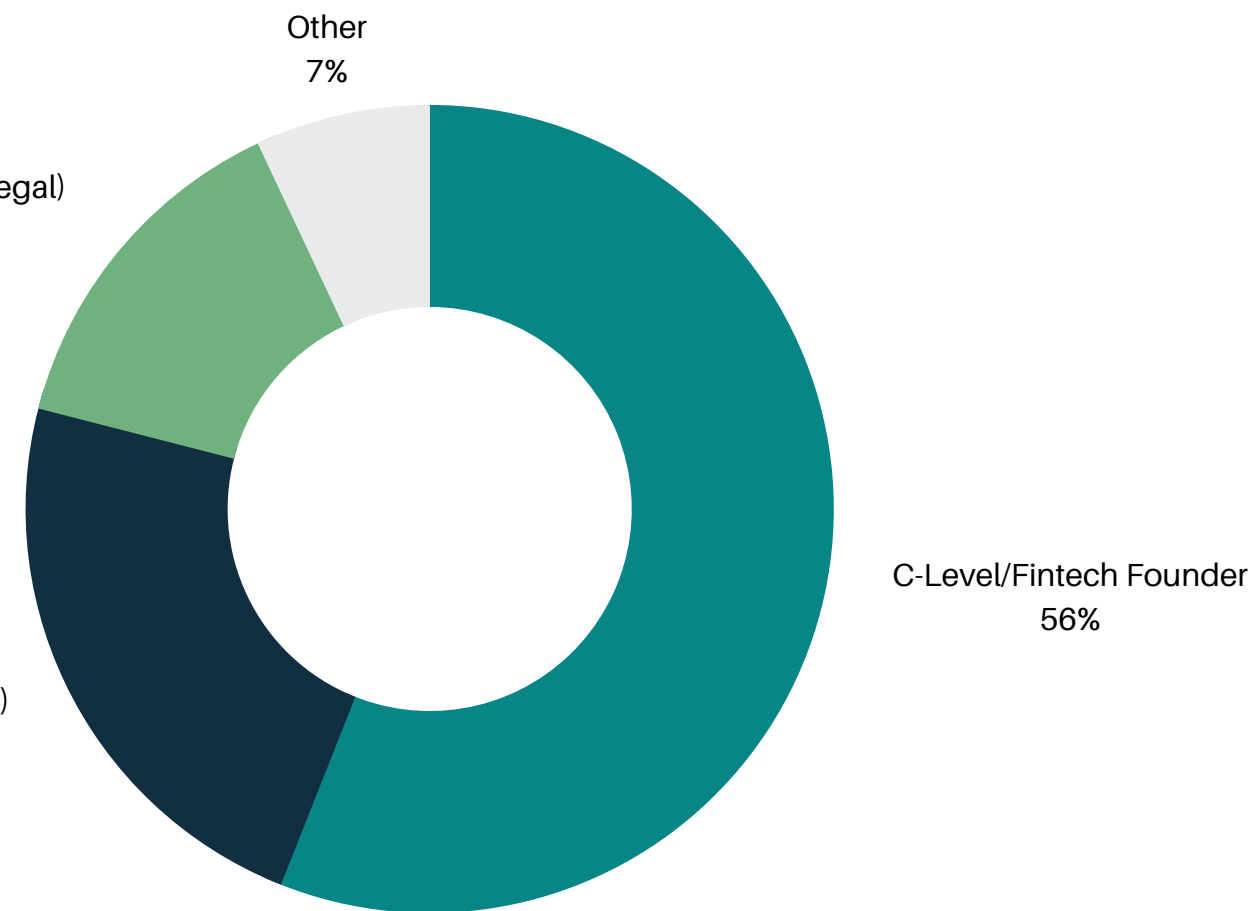

Business Networking

Networking is just one of the perks of PIF membership. Our year-round programme of meetings, conferences and events are built with an abundance of networking time, providing opportunities for members to meet and connect with some of the most influential companies and individuals in payments and fintech.
